horses and wagons, $3,500; for furniture and repairs, $19,000; for folding speeches, $3,522; for expenses of traveling commit-tees, $23,004; for miscellaneous items, $18,-$92. The itemized statement shows that the expenses of the committee of sena-tors who attended the funeral of Gen. Grant were $1,563; the funeral of Vice President Hendricks cost $1,157; the funeral of Senator Willer $1,271; the Indian conof Senator Miller, $1,271; the Indian comtors who have horses, several dozen bottles of pond lily wash, several cases of German cologne, a quantity of Lubin's face powder, pomade, hair tonic, Jamaica ginger, quinine pills, and there is also a conspicuous entry of four dozen cortscrews. If these corkscrews were distributed among the senators, there are yet twenty eight members of that body without them. They will probably be supplied during the coming year.

Each senator is outified to $125 a year for stationery, but they are permitted to spend ors who have horses, several dozen bottles

Each senator is entitled to $125 a year for stationery, but they are permitted to spend it for any other purpose they like or draw the cash. Senator Ransom, of North Carolina, is the only man who drew the full amount in money. The remainder of the senators had from $10 to $100 remaining to their credit at the end of the year. Don Cameron appears to have used more stationery than any other senator for he took $125.95 worth of that article. Jones, of Florida, required only $10 worth of stationery to conduct his correspondence in Michieur ery to conduct his correspondence in Michi

A number of senators paid for their mag-azines and newspapers out of their station-ery allowances, and in looking over the report of the secretary of the Senate one can discover what newspapers the different senators read. Gen. Logan subscribed for the Chicago Tribane and Inter-Ocean, New York Tribane, and Cincinnati Gazette. The last named paper he took for only three months during the time when the Payne case was before the Senate, and probably for the purpose of reading what was said of him in its columns. Senator Ingalis took all the Illustrated publications for children. Senator Teller appears to A number of senators paid for their mag terium Review. Seinator George read the North American Review and took the weekly editions of the principal papers in the large cities. Senator Call had the secthe large cities. Schade Vall had the sec-retary of the Senate pay a bill of $4 for an advertisement in a local paper. The only charges against Senator Edminds read as follows: "For one vopy of The Judge, fur-nished to the Hon. George F. Edmunds from April 7 to Oct. 7, $2,50."

Cheap and Dainty Fancy Work -Sugges tions for Ornaments.

Fancy work is not an expensive a nuss ment, and it is one that most women, even those of moderate means, must have. There are many articles that may be made for a little money and will look as pretty and artistic as those coating much more. One of the prettiest of bureau covers is made out of a couple of vards of Swiss, covered with little white flowers. The material is worth 10 or 12 cents a yard. Cut it the desired shape and then with a little vallow and plok slik floss work the roses afternately yellow and plack or scarlet and yellow, or any other combination that may be

The Secretary of the Senate Gives Out
Some Interesting Facts.

The report of the secretary of the Senate is always a curious document, says the Washington correspondent of the Milwaukee Scatinel, and shows that the people of the United States were required to pay $877,838 for the support of the house of lords last year, which is an average of $11,550 a senator. The various items of expense were For stationery and newspapers, $15,263; for fuel supply $8,519; for hire of horses and wagons, $35,500; for furniture and suppless $15,000; for furniture and suppless $15,0
